CITY OF MADISON

JEFFREY CLAY ERLANGER CIVILITY IN PUBLIC DISCOURSE AWARD

The City of Madison invites you to submit nominations for its annual JEFFREY CLAY ERLANGER CIVILITY IN PUBLIC DISCOURSE AWARD. The award honors Jeffrey Clay Erlanger, who was an individual of integrity, passion, intelligence, and civility. Jeff understood that thoughtful and caring people could have very different views on how to best address our community's many complex issues and problems. Jeff, who died on June 10, 2007, spent a significant part of his life committed to public service, focusing on constructive advocacy and civil debate, fairness, openness, and effective representation. He embraced the similarities that unite us.

- Jeff served on the City of Madison's Economic Development Commission; he was chair of the Commission on People with Disabilities; chair of the Board of Directors of the Community Living Alliance; and ran for the Madison Common Council in 2002. He also held a number of other significant positions in the community. One of his greatest accomplishments was his successful push for the accessible taxicab service in Madison today.
- Even as a child, Jeff Erlanger's intelligence, strength and lively spirit did not go unnoticed. At the young age of 10, he made an appearance on the television show Mr. Roger's Neighborhood.
You can watch the video here: <http://bit.ly/1rr3q9V> ("It's You I Like" – Jeff Erlanger's appearance on Mr. Rogers' Neighborhood).
- "Jeff was one of the finest men I've met committed to public service. He was well-informed in many areas of City government, chaired several committees and was appreciated as a voice of civility and reason." -Enis Ragland, Deputy Mayor of Administration and Finance

CRITERIA

The Jeffrey Clay Erlanger Civility in Public Discourse Award recognizes city of Madison residents sharing Jeff Erlanger's dedication to, and passion for public policy development, civility, individual and human rights and who conduct their daily life consistent with these values and who have had a significant impact on the Madison community.
